What is a Live Casino?

At its core, a live casino is an online video gaming platform that streams real-time casino games from specifically developed studios or real land-based casinos. Instead of betting a computer system algorithm governed by an RNG, gamers engage with professional human dealers by means of high-definition video feeds.

Players can position bets utilizing an instinctive digital user interface on their computer, tablet, or mobile phone, while watching the dealer spin the wheel or deal the cards in genuine time. Features like live chat allow players to communicate with the dealership and, sometimes, with fellow players at the virtual table. This level of social interaction bridges the space between solitary digital gaming and the dynamic community of a physical casino.

The Technology Behind the Magic

The smooth experience of a live casino is made possible by sophisticated technology operating behind the scenes. It is not simply a webcam pointed at a table; it is a complex community of hardware and software application.

- Game Control Unit (GCU): Every table includes a GCU, which is a device encoded in every table that encodes the video broadcast and assists the dealer in managing the video game.
- Optical Character Recognition (OCR): OCR innovation is important for table games like Blackjack and Roulette. It transforms physical actions (such as the cards dealt or the winning number on the wheel) into digital data, allowing the software application to instantly credit wins and losses to gamer accounts.
- Several Camera Angles: High-definition cameras record the action from different perspectives, providing gamers a cinematic view of the gameplay, close-ups of the cards, and scenic views of the studio.

Live Casino vs. Traditional RNG Games

To comprehend why live dealer games have actually captured such a huge share of the online betting market, it helps to compare them straight to standard RNG-based online casino games.
