FAQ Section

What should I look for when choosing a cosmetic dentist?

It's essential to consider qualifications, experience, patient reviews, and whether they offer a range of services tailored to your needs.

Are there any risks associated with cosmetic dentistry?

As with any medical procedure, there are risks involved; however, these are generally low when performed by qualified professionals.

How long do cosmetic procedures last?

The longevity varies by procedure; for example, dental implants can last over 10 years with proper care while teeth whitening may require touch-ups every few months.

Can anyone benefit from cosmetic dentistry?

Yes! Individuals seeking aesthetic enhancement or addressing specific imperfections can greatly benefit from various procedures available at local dental centres.

Is insurance likely to cover cosmetic procedures?

Typically, insurance does not cover elective cosmetic procedures; however, some restorative treatments may be partially covered if deemed necessary for oral health.

How do I maintain my new smile after treatment?

Following good oral hygiene practices—like regular brushing and flossing—and attending follow-up appointments will help maintain your results over time.
